I volunteer with Koala rescue so witness on a daily basis the difficult lives these beautiful little koalas have to endure. They do not know to fear heavy machinery, they do not know that to achieve survival they need to navigate dangerous situations. Maintaining their environment and koala corridors are vital in ensuring their survival. If you have ever been fortunate enough to spot the iconic silhouette of a koala sitting in the fork of a tree, innocently, causing no harm, surely you would advocate for its safety.
